How it works

Installation is quick and easy

The posts are aligned, levelled and anchored in a concrete footing similar to the other fence posts. They are installed five feet from each other. The depth of the post foundations vary with soil conditions, wind loads and wall height. Once the foundation has an initial cure (usually 24 hours), concrete panels are inserted into soil. Additional panels stuck in place according to desired fence height. The post foundation supports the panel sections. Attaching the concrete panel cap to the top panel, that completes the fence installation.

Our post and panel precast concrete fences can be constructed to eight feet high and can accommodate difficult sites with various landscape. Panels can be cut for alterations in the fence line and therefore custom tailored to your project's specific need.
